The abbreviations for secondary and tertiary are used only in connexion with organic compounds.

In addition, elements, groups, and easily recognised substances are denoted in the text by symbols and formulæ. (In Section A., III this applies only to inorganic compounds, excluding water, and to chloroform and carbon tetrachloride.) "Oleum" is allowed to describe fuming sulphuric acid and "room temp." for "the ordinary temperature." The symbol for 10 A. is mμ. (not μμ.) and for the International X-ray unit it is X, not XU. The symbol for  $10^{-6}$  g. is ug. (not γ).

The following symbols are used except in Section A., III: >, greater than; much greater than; ‡, not greater than (and <, <<, < conversely); ∞, (is) proportional to; ~, of the order of, or approximately.

The principal Pharmacopœias are denoted by B.P., U.S.P., and D.A.B., followed in each case by the identifying numeral.
